Secretary Blaine's Health.

New York, May 14.—The World this morning prints this: It is a matter of fact Secretary Blaine is in no condition to take part in business consultations. He receives no visitors and the state department officials have instructions to send no mail. The secretary has not been out of his bedroom since the musical festival last week, and it is doubtful if he has been out of his bed. The secretary's health has been bad for some time, and he is now a very sick man. Indeed he has been in his condition to work during several months past. Those who have kept close watch on him in Washington have remarked that since the beginning of the year he has been absent from the state department more days than he has attended, and when he did go to the department his stay was short. He has done most of his work during the past four or five months in the privacy of his own house and furthermore he has done it either lying in bed or reclining in an easy chair, propped up all around with cushions.

Report A Much Better.

New York, May 14 — The following statement was given out at the residence of Mr. Dennisch this morning relating to the illness of Secretary James G. Blaine:

There seems to be an impression that the condition of Secretary Blaine is much worse than has been reported from day to day in the newspapers. Dr. Dennis the family physician, called at the Dennisch residence this morning and after remaining with Mr. Blaine for nearly half an hour, stated that his patient was feeling much better to-day than he was yesterday. The secretary partook of a very light breakfast and afterwards chatted very pleasantly with his wife, son-in-law and daughter.

President Harrison's Reception at Indianapolis

AMONG NEIGHBORS AND FRIENDS

A Brief Visit Receives Attention but Has Its Own Charms As Affording Special Amusement for the Occasion

[illegible]

Arrival at Indianapolis

The special train arrived in the union station in Indianapolis at 4:45 o'clock. Booming of cannon and shrieking of whistles announced the approach of the distinguished visitor to the Indianapolis people, several thousand of whom assembled in and about the station. There took place a prolonged cheering as the president stepped from the platform with Governor Hovey. Escorted by the committee that met him at Montezuma the president walked through the station to Jackson place, where a carriage was in waiting. The carriage was then drawn by the people, who had assembled in great numbers, and the procession moved through the streets to the Grand Hotel, the president being escorted by a troop of cavalry. At the Grand the president was met by a great crowd, which had gathered at the station.

Through Ohio

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 14.—The president's train at Cincinnati at 6 o'clock. The train was packed with people to whom the president made an address. He was frequently cheered during his delivery and Messrs. Wanamaker and Tusk made short speeches. The train left at 10 o'clock for Columbus, Carter Harrison, mayor of the present city of Dayton.

The presidential train passed through Columbus at 11:30 tonight. The president was cheered by the crowd which had gathered at the station.

The Committee Reports

New Orleans, May 14.—The committee of fifty, appointed by the mayor on the 16th of October last, under a resolution of the city council to investigate the matter of existence of secret societies or bands of murderous assassins which had taken many lives in the city and to devise means and the most effectual measures for the uprooting of these assassins, today submitted its final report which is substantially as follows: The first [illegible] was to obtain a respite of ninety four assassinations by Italians and Italians and when the accused escaped for want of evidence. The results of the Hennessey trial demonstrated to the people that no one was safe from the murderous band that was operating regardless of the law. It was only when this fear grew into absolute conviction that the people themselves rose in their might and took the law into their own hands. With the occurrence of that day the committee had no connection, nor did they have any knowledge of it. The report then goes on to show the existence of the Mafia here and says the Italian consul admitted the existence of that society to a subcommittee which called on him and promised to furnish the names of its leaders and other information regarding it, but at the last moment declined to do so, claiming that as it was an extra judicial body he did not feel warranted in giving the promised information.

The committee then suggests the following as possibly being the needful remedies to stamp out the evil:

First—The regulation of immigration.

Second—Reform in the criminal laws and administration of criminal justice.

Third—Law recognizing the existence of a bar association and endowing it with full powers to try and disbar any attorney whose evil practices render him unworthy of being an officer of a court.

The report concludes: The only radical remedy which suggests itself to us is the entire prohibition of emigration from Sicily and lower Italy. It was found necessary to prohibit Chinese immigration and Congress passed the necessary law. Danger to California from the Chinese was no greater than the danger to this state from the Sicilians and southern Italians. We have had long experience with these people, and that experience has been a sad one. They are undesirable citizens and there is no reason why they should be permitted to participate in the blessings of a civilization which they are not only unable to appreciate but they refuse to understand or adopt.

News from Samoa

San Francisco, May 14.—The steamer Alameda arrived from Sydney via Samoa and Honolulu this afternoon, bringing the following advices: The natives of several districts are still harping on the kingship question and raising feeling against King Malietoa and in favor of Mataafa, notwithstanding the remonstrances of the chief justice. The two chiefs charged with sending to the consul in Apia for a meeting of chiefs in the interest of Mataafa, or some other chief to the kingship of Samoa were both convicted and sentenced to six months imprisonment.

Foreign consuls have requested the American government to send a war ship to Samoa and the Charleston is reported to have left for there.

Massachusetts Redistricting

Boston, May 14.—The special legislative committee on the congressional redistricting of this state, reported a bill to the house this afternoon, Senator Bond and Representative B. Pratt dissenting. It provides for thirteen districts, of which it is said eight will be surely Republican. A general consensus of opinion at the state house, as gathered by The Herald reporters, is that the bill is a fair one and will pass. It makes many important changes from present lines.

A Ridiculous Story

New York, May 14.—The secretary of the Haytian legation to-day said that the story in a morning paper of an attempt to assassinate President Hippolyte of Hayti is ridiculous, that the cable news is perfect and that if any attempt had been made the news would positively have reached the legation. Jannet, he said, was in the west while President Hippolyte went around to the southern Lesquyes from Aquin.

New York Labor Situation

New York, May 14.—There are ninety two lumber dealers now banded together in the lumber trade association and nearly all shops have joined the general lock out.

Over 1200 housesmiths were paid their strike money today.

The framers are still keeping the strike up. The coal nation of strikes seems to have paralyzed the building trade.

A Continuance Granted.

El Paso, Tex., May 14.—When the case of Postmaster Smith, charged with unlawfully refusing the Times mail edition admission to the mails, was called in U. S. Commissioner McKlee's court this morning defendant asked for a continuance, which was granted, and his bond was continued until May 21 when his case will be heard.

Moving Day at Scottdale.

Scottdale, Pa., May 14.—A large number of new hands to take the place of the strikers arrived here last night. One of the strikers, who came through with the new hands from Pittsburg, says that they will not go to work in the places of the old hands. Today is a scene of moving day in the valley. Those who were dispossessed yesterday are moving their goods into the opera house.

The king of Portugal announces his willingness to resign if the ministers think it necessary. The opinion of the dear people does not count.

There is an apparent spirit of jealousy in the following from the St. Louis Globe Democrat: The vagaries of the Farmers Alliance have not made any considerable progress in Colorado, and those in charge of the western congress know these dangers and are determined to avoid them.

The "Western Commercial Congress" which is to meet at Denver next week is likely to be barren of results as was its predecessor which assembled in Kansas City a few weeks ago. It will probably like the Kansas City affair, be run by Democrats and the Farmers' Alliance in the interests of the democratic party.

Critics who have referred to President Harrison as an iceberg should read the speech which he delivered in Indianapolis yesterday. A man cannot be called cold blooded who would express such sentiments. Of course there are those who will not fail to call them affected but they have the evident ring of sincerity. It is probably true not only that no one succeeds in public life, but also that no one deserves to do so, who does not keep a warm place in his heart for the friends of his youth and those who in manhood's years have stood by him and have made possible the measure of success he has achieved.

In his address last evening on Sunday newspapers, Rev. Mr. Greene was not disposed to admit that the Sunday paper was ever a good thing. However, he recognized the fact that the Gazette in the quality of its matter was very much superior to most of the other papers. We believe this to be a fact and can assure our readers that they are getting the best that can be had. The credit for this belongs largely to the people of this city. But there is an evident demand for a high class Sunday paper is shown by constantly increasing sales, which drove us for an extraordinarily large edition on that day.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

The New Orleans affair has put a check upon the number of American visitors in Italy. If this continues, the affair will not be without its benefits. There is much to be learned in a European trip, and many special students find in Italy and other foreign countries what they could not elsewhere obtain. But there is no reason why many Americans should every year spend thousands of dollars in sight seeing and fashion following in foreign lands. It is true that the novelties of foreign travel add greatly to its attractiveness. It is both pleasant and profitable to associate with people whose languages, customs and training are entirely different from our own, and such associations doubtless result in strengthening and developing the mental powers.

But in order to gain these benefits much more time is necessary than is at the disposal of the ordinary summer tourists. To them the differences of language and manners become serious annoyances, and too often excuses for extortion and imposition. The student may learn more of human nature than he would ever acquire in his own land by becoming for a time a resident of many lands, but the tourist who is hurried from one place to another, dependent for his information upon couriers and guide books, can gain little more than the satisfaction that he has done the "proper" thing.

There is already a decided reaction in favor of traveling in our own land. So far as natural attractions are concerned, it is in no way inferior to Europe, and indeed there is much of which we may boast that its equal is nowhere to be found. The recent trip of the president, covering as it did only a small part of our national domain aptly illustrates the variety of climate and scenery which is open for the traveler's inspection. He may at his choice, find snow in August or flowers and fruit in January, he may please his eye with every varied form of mountain and lake and sea, he may venture on glaciers larger than those of the Alps; he may stand in vineyards more productive than those of France, or in many places in Colorado may view a scenery unsurpassed in beauty and sublimity, unrivaled in wonderful detail. The American traveler in America may miss the novelty that there is in foreign countries but he will gain many times more than he loses. He will return a better citizen because of a better knowledge of his own land, the money he spends will benefit his fellow citizens, while in rest and recreation, the primary benefits of travel, he will gain immeasurably over the fashionable sight seeing of Europe.

THE ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION

Berlin, May 16.—The Japanese embassy has received advices from Tokio stating that the czarewitz's wound is trifling.

The latest report concerning the affair is that the czarewitz and Prince George were returning home from a place of amusement when they came in conflict with police officers, who asserted themselves too vigorously, until the identity of the prince was revealed. The princes were without escort at the time. The slightness of the czarewitz's wound is explained to be due to the fact that the Japanese policemen use blunt sabers.

The czarewitz is about to leave Japan for Vladivostok.

MEN OUT OF THE WATER

St. Louis, May 16.—A special dispatch from the City of Mexico says that persistent rumors are in circulation there that the United States cruiser Charleston overtook the Chilian vessel Itata on the high seas, and a naval fight ensued. Shots had been fought in the harbor was worsted and blown out of the water.

FITTING FOR A CRUISE.

WHAT IT COSTS A NAVAL LIEUTENANT TO DO THIS.

In the Matter of Clothes the Officer of Any Ability Must Not Be Poor—Details Relating to the Amount Involved.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, May 11. Many naval officers have been ordered to sea on the new cruisers, and the official tailors are busy. What a trousseau is to the bride is an outfit to the naval officer. No one worries and frets and runs and plans more than he. The philosopher who wrote that "clothes make the man" must have had the naval officer in mind. What would the officer be without his uniform? The commonest clay, he would also be a good share. It pays to pocket every year if the powers that be would permit him to dress as he pleases, but they won't, and there's an end of it. My friend Lieutenant M., has just been ordered to sea in one of the new cruisers. He was, strange to say, glad to go.

The darling boy has been in Washington "awaiting orders" for three years, and he has had a gay time. Society took him in and made the most of him, and he made the most of it. If one cares to do it a social course may be taken in Washington at very small expense, but my friend not only accepted invitations to dinner and attended all the swell receptions, but asked his fair admirers to a box at the theater. The result was that his salary of $1,600 a year melted away like a New England snowdrift in April, and his credit at his tailor's had become strained. Naturally, therefore, I was somewhat surprised when he said to me a few days ago.

"I am going over to my tailor's to order five or six suits of clothes. Come along."

"But I thought you said last week your tailor was looking askance at you," I gasped, "and now you talk of five or six suits at once."

"Oh, that's all right. My tailor will smile on me now. I have been ordered to sea."

So I went with him to Helberger. Helberger is the army and navy tailor here. He has a monopoly of the officers' trade in both services, and having been at it for forty-one years has managed to accumulate a big fortune. The officers all say his prices are reasonable, and they never think of going anywhere else, though some of the figures which I afterwards coolly took my breath away.

FULL DRESS SOCIAL FULL DRESS.

"Ah! going to sea? That is good," exclaimed Helberger joyfully. "And you want a complete outfit, of course? I'll fit you out elegantly."

"I want the best this time, because we are going to have a lot of society and things in foreign ports."

"Very well. I'll make you look like an admiral."

"And the usual arrangement goes?"

"Certainly."

"The usual arrangement," I afterward learned, was an order on the navy pay office here for a certain percentage of the lieutenant's monthly pay, running through the whole three years he expected to be away on a cruise. The lieutenant said he would take the whole bill of fare, which the tailor began to describe.

"A dress suit, frock coat, blue trousers, chapeau and helmet, epaulets, sword belt and sword knot. This uniform must be worn on all occasions of ordinary ceremony—in boarding ships of war, in making the first visit in port to commanding officers, on parades of ceremony with enlisted men under arms, and at Sunday inspection, except on the first Sunday in the month."

"And what must be worn on the first Sunday of the month?"

"Why the special full dress, which is like the other except that the coat is a swallow tail cut. This must be worn on occasions of special ceremony and at the general muster the first Sunday of every month."

"And the rest?"

"The full dress suit. This is different from the others in that it is open in the front. The trousers may be the same, as also the sword, epaulets, etc. This uniform is worn on occasions of ceremony like the others, the commanding officer designating the suit in the orders of the day. It is employed usually in making the first visit in port to officers of flag rank, and on social occasions to which officers are invited in their official capacity, and at which evening dress would be expected."

"Suppose you should be invited, as an individual to a ball in a foreign port?" I said to the lieutenant, "what would you wear then?"

"My social full dress uniform," he replied, "which would be simply my full dress uniform without chapeau, epaulets or shoulder knots, sword, belt or sword knot, and with plain blue trousers. Before doing so, however, I should have to get the permission of my commanding officer. If the ball or reception was not of an official or ceremonial character I could go in an ordinary evening dress suit, which reminds me that I need one and may as well order it now."

"And as to the undress and service suits?" suggested Mr. Helberger.

"Oh, I must have them too, of course. You see," the lieutenant explained, "our undress uniform requires another coat, though it differs from the dress chiefly in the fact that we wear no epaulets with it and the gold bands on the cuffs are not so broad. We wear this suit with either white or blue trousers and with cap or helmet as ordered by the commanding officer. It is the uniform we wear when reporting for duty, when serving on courts or boards except boards of survey, and when calling officially on flag officers other than commanding officers.

"And the service dress?

"This is the least expensive and most comfortable of all our uniforms. It consists of a navy blue blouse of navy blue cloth or serge shaped to the figure, blue or white trousers, blue cap or helmet as ordered. We wear this at all times when one of the other uniforms is not required by regulations. If we are on duty with enlisted men under arms, or away from the ship, we must wear the service sword belt with sword. If we are on watch the sword must be at hand, within easy reach. If we are on duty with the naval brigade or a landing party we must wear leggins. We usually carry two service suits, and sometimes three when starting on a long cruise. We also take along three or four white duck suits for use in hot weather. In addition to all this we must have a cutaway suit, such as I am wearing now, a Prince Albert coat, boots, shoes, linen, cravats, underclothing, hose, gloves, handkerchiefs and the deuce only knows what all."

"You forgot your overcoat," suggested the tailor.

"Yes, there's the overcoat. And I shall want a cap, and a gray helmet, and extra sword belts and while you're at it, Helberger, you'd better make me an extra cutaway and two undress suits. One won't last me till I get back."

"And how much is all this going to cost, Mr. Helberger?"

"Let me see," said the tailor, while the lead pencil was busy on a sheet of wrapping paper. "The full dress coat is $60, the trousers $25, the chapeau $30, the belt $15, the sword $35, the sword knot $8.50, and the epaulets $65. Probably you are surprised at the cost of the epaulets. Every one is. But look at them. They are of solid gold—that is, these seventeen tassels are made of fine spun gold, and the frame is made of gilt alloy. You can buy epaulets up to $40 apiece. They all come from London, where one firm started upon a million dollars in the hope of the profit for making this gold wire. The late Admiral Porter paid $250 for his epaulets, and then didn't think them fine enough."

But to go on with the inventory, the special full dress coat is $60, the trousers $25, and the rest $8. The undress coat is $50, the trousers $16 and the vest $20 or $64 the suit, and as you want two suits this will be $128. Your service suit is $50 for the blouse, $15 for the trousers, $8 for the vest, or $73 in all. Two suits will be $146. Three white suits of duck at $40 are $120. The overcoat is $60. Your black evening dress suit is $75. Your two cutaway suits $100. Your Prince Albert $50. Your cap $8.50, and your gray helmet $6.50. If my figures are right the bill is $1,085.50."

"A pretty big bill," I suggested.

"Yes, but not as big as we sometimes have. Last week an officer spent $1,300 in uniforms alone. A few years ago we had an admiral's full dress uniform that cost him an even $700 as he stood in it at a White House reception. His full dress coat was $125, one of the finest garments it is possible for the sartorial art to turn out. His epaulets were $300, his chapeau $60, his trousers $45, his sword knot $40, his sword belt $100 and his sword $120.

"This is rather expensive tailoring," continued Mr. Helberger, "for several reasons. First, the material must be of the best that is made, the cut and fit must be perfect. Then the work is of a particular character. Everything must be 'just so' in order to answer the requirements of the regulations. A variation of a hair's breadth in the width of a cuff band, or in the distance at which one button is placed from another, gets our customer into trouble."

"And as to the little bill of three hundred odd which I now owe you, Mr. Helberger," inquired the lieutenant.

"Don't worry about that. Perhaps you will have that much left out of your pay when you come back from your cruise. Then we'll square up and start even."

THE CONGREGATIONALISTS

[illegible] Arkansas Valley Association of the Arkansas Valley Association

The morning session of the two days conference of the Arkansas Valley association commenced yesterday at nine o'clock in the South Congregational church with Mr Ormes of this city presiding and with Mr Mann acting as scribe. The Rev C H Mann of Pueblo led the devotional exercises, after which the roll was called by Mr Sanderson.

It was decided that the next meeting of the association should be held at Leadville.

The Rev S Wagner gave a talk on The Practical Value of the Old Testament Study, which was followed by a discussion. The Rev Mr Ormes read a paper on "Preaching to Present Day Needs," which was discussed by the Rev Mr Dodge of Leadville, who has drawn from his experience in the Congregational Church Services. It was a strong and practical paper, and the discussion which followed was participated in by the Rev Mr Ormes, who listened to it with marked interest by those present. The speaker specially emphasized the lack of the most of worship in the services.

The Rev E S Ralston of Leadville took part in the programme with a paper on "The Minister in Inter-mountain Movements" and the Rev W G Mann of Pueblo, spoke on "Church Union for Social Christian Work." Both these addresses showed careful preparation and were pleasing features of the session.

The discussion of the last named topic was taken part in by the Reverends Crook, Ralston and Downs. After this the session adjourned until evening.

EVENING SESSION

The opening of the evening session was delayed for a time by the failure of Rev J H Heald who was to have led the devotional service to put in an appearance. After waiting for some time his place was taken by the Rev Mr Ormes and the service was proceeded with after which some routine business was attended to.

It was announced that the Reverends Dodge, Ralston and Earle would serve as a committee on the program for the ensuing year. It was moved and carried that Messrs. Ormes, Mann and Gregg serve as a committee to make a roll of the members of the association and if possible to complete the association's records.

The topic for the evening was "Sunday Observance."

The Rev A O Downs of Manitou spoke upon "Legitimate Sunday Work," and gave a carefully prepared summary of the illegitimate and illegitimate work on that day. He believes that the mails should not be carried on Sunday, he is opposed to the Sunday opening of the World's fair and to the majority of public entertainments or business enterprises that are conducted on that day.

The Rev Mr Veach gave a fifteen minute address on the "Legitimate Sunday Rest," in which the conclusion which he reached was to the effect that every form of Sunday recreation or pleasure is wrong which compels others to perform work.

Mrs C P Fitch of Manitou followed Mr Voorhees with a paper on "Sunday at Home" which was devoted principally to the Sunday amusement and entertainment in the home.

The last address on the list was that of the Rev Mr Gregg on "Sunday Observance." He began by giving a brief outline of the history of the Sunday papers of this country and cited the various arguments for and against the publication of such a paper. The substance of his remarks was as follows:

The Sunday paper is said to be demanded by the people, although the people are frequently known to demand what which is evil and all demands of such a character should not be catered to. But it is doubtful if the public demands the Sunday newspaper. There are more people, the speaker believed, who do not desire the Sunday issue, than there are those who desire that it be. Colorado Springs papers, the speaker believed to be free to an extraordinary extent from that which is of a degrading and interior quality found in so many Sunday papers. Especially is this the case with the GAZETTE, the dean and most influential of the city papers. This paper, he said, contained considerable amount of profitable matter, nevertheless all Sunday papers sap the minds of their readers immoderately in business and pleasure to too great extent. It was a great calamity to have Sunday paper twice or three times the size of the usual issue whose delegate seems to fill the public mind with gloomy things. He questioned the benefit any good may do which be claimed, yet every opportunity for good the public with articles for moral welfare. The clergyman should devote himself to the advancement of the kingdom of God. He did not think it right to furnish addresses to spiritual culture in a beer garden resort.

In the discussion the speaker gave an illustration of some of the advertisements of the Sunday papers. He cited the Rudyard Kipling's "Bill Nye" fashions for Easter and elopements he has had to take up an enormous amount of space in these issues. The first of all the matter found in papers, he said, is profitable "advertising." The Sunday paper if well conducted should be laid aside the following day and if of bad character should be subjected to the fire. That there is more to be said for the Sunday paper than in favor of the conclusion which the speaker has reached.

County Superintendents.

The county superintendents of schools of the state had a busy but pleasant day yesterday. They visited the Mute and Blind institute and witnessed the operation of Professor Bayne's admirable school. They expressed themselves as greatly interested and pleased in the school.

The session of the convention was resumed at 11 o'clock and the following committees were selected. On resolutions Bowman, Shepard and Diltz; on

KILLED ON THE STREET

[illegible] Yesterday

Mrs A Winn of this city was killed on the streets of this city yesterday morning by the accidental discharge of a gun. The boy had a gun with him and while the buggy was being driven along the streets the gun was accidentally discharged, the shot entering the back of Mrs Winn's head and ranging downward. The wounded woman was taken to the Sanitarium where she died at 10 o'clock. The boy was very much frightened at the result of his act. The shot entered the back of the head and ranged

To the Missouri Association.

Mr. Thos. Patterson, the eminent attorney of Denver, spoke at length upon the subject, as well as other representatives from different parts of the state. It was claimed by Mr. Patterson that it was reported that certain lines discriminated against Colorado on account of important interests in tourist points in other directions, and asked the association that a united effort would be made by the citizens and merchants of Colorado which would result in the discontinuance of any discriminating against the interests of Colorado.

Most of the members favored a low rate, but on account of the opposition of the Santa Fe and Burlington nothing could be done to reduce the 20 per cent. rate, which is a discrimination against Colorado and diverts the tourist business to the [illegible] The question remained and the question of [illegible] tickets has not failed to result at any amicable conclusion. The association then adjourned to meet in Kansas City on Wednesday next.
